

2010 IDAHO ASSOCIATION OF PARALEGALS, INC. SCHOLARSHIP IN MEMORY OF DENISE O'DONNELL-DAY

The Idaho Association of Paralegals, Inc. scholarship is named for the late Denise O'Donnell-Day who died on December 28, 1996 at the age of 39 following a valiant fight with cancer. A graduate of Georgetown University and Marquette Law School, Denise was director of the Idaho Volunteer Lawyers Program (IVLP). Through her work at IVLP, she worked successfully to pair disadvantaged persons needing legal services with those willing and able to provide those services on a pro bono basis.

Denise was also a champion of the paralegal profession. As one of the first instructors in the Paralegal Studies Program at Boise State University, she taught her students the basics of the law. Beyond that, she shared her passion for providing quality legal services to the poor, and encouraged her students to volunteer their time in that endeavor. She cared deeply about education for paralegals and always made herself available to a student with a question or one in need of more information. If she didn't know the answer to a student's question one week, she'd have the answer by the next. Her commitment to the educational process was unflagging.

Everyone who knew Denise was touched by her gentleness, compassion and desire to make the world a better place. We name this scholarship in her honor and pledge to carry forward the commitment to quality legal services she inspired in so many of us and that she worked for throughout her life.
